

Oral exams in groups at ITU

Oral exams in groups must be conducted in one of the five ways described below.

Courses

If a course has an oral group exam, it will say in the course description which option is used for the particular exam.

Individual exam

Individual student presentation followed by an individual dialogue.
The student is examined while the rest of the group is outside the room.

Mixed exam 1

Individual and joint student presentation followed by an individual and a group dialogue.
The students make a joint presentation followed by a group dialogue. Subsequently the students are having individual examination with presentation and / or dialogue with the examiners while the rest of the group is outside the room.

Mixed exam 2

Joint student presentation followed by an individual dialogue.
The group makes their presentations together and afterwards the students participate in the dialogue individually while the rest of the group is outside the room.

Mixed exam 3

Individual student presentation followed by a group dialogue with the examiners.
The students make individual presentations while the rest of the group is outside the room. When all students have presented the whole group participate in the following dialogue.

Group exam

Joint student presentation followed by a group dialogue.
All the students are present in the examination room throughout the examination.
